LEARN MORE: FETAL ACCELERATIONS AND DECELERATIONS

Variable decelerations are associated with cord compression (V and C). Early decelerations are associated with head compression. This is generally a benign event (E and H). Accelerations are associated with oxygenation, which explains why they're generally a good prognostic factor (A and O). Late accelerations are associated with placental insufficiency (L and P). The trick to this mnemonic is writing it so each letter is associated with the one beneath it, or the other way around.
